Jane,

Sorry for the delay in responding, I've been out sick since last Thursday.

There are 10 segments that have numeric phosphorous criteria. There are two new regulatory segments with P criteria, resulting from the state separating lakes from lotic waters and apply the appropriate uses and criteria. Those include Bluewater Lake in the Rio Grande basin, Bonito Lake in the Pecos.

You mentioned the Chama. The Chama River Canyon Wilderness, Rio Chama, Rio Puerco de Chama, are now designated as ONRWs, but that designation does not carry specific numeric criteria. None of these segments have site-specific numeric P criteria. In the Pecos Wilderness, the Rio Mora has also been designated as an ONRW. Assuming that the Mora River is the direct receiving stream for the City of Mora, no site-specific numeric P criteria apply to the Mora River (Canadian basin) itself.

The limited site-specific P criteria does not limit the applicability of the 20.6.4.13 General Criteria, section E. Plant Nutrients. NMED has provided 6WQ-P with language on how to implement that for municipalities. (b) (5)

I have not seen anything since the original draft, so unfortunately I can't be of much help as to what's happened in the last couple of months.

Hey Russell,

Take a look at question below, I ask because I think NM changed P criterion for Chama River and maybe some other segments?

If there is still a P criterion for Mora receiving stream (NM may revised some of these) we should probably attend this briefing

Next Thursday a briefing is set for Ron and Sam and Bill (who will not be here) to discuss General Waters Discussion/Mora County, NM. When I mentioned it to Bill earlier this week, he said that it may be one of your programs. Please let me know if you will be able to attend this meeting or if I should request the meeting be changed, unless there is a time limitation on the issue.

Sue
